

Schweizer Aircraft Corporation Teams with Firm On Department of Homeland Security Programs

"We look forward to building on our past success with the experts at Schweizer Aircraft Corporation," remarks Gerald Corcoran, Managing Partner with Corcoran Associates. "These programs focus on important aviation assets and compliment the teams extensive operational, technical, and program management experience".

Scottsdale, AZ (PRWeb) October 31, 2006 -- Corcoran Associates, a firm of business advisors with offices in North America and Europe, has been awarded a contract from Schweizer Aircraft Corporation to address Department of Homeland Security programs. "We look forward to building on our past success with the experts at Schweizer Aircraft Corporation," remarks Gerald Corcoran, Managing Partner with Corcoran Associates. "These programs focus on important aviation assets and compliment the teams extensive operational, technical, and program management experience".

Combining state-of-the-market technology with aggressive payload and operational requirements becomes routine, when working with the future assets that will support Manned, Covert, Surveillance Aircraft programs. "Looking beyond the first flights, the low direct operational cost and impressive performance will make these programs the best in class," states Kelly Isley, Partner Corcoran Associates. "These are good examples of the discriminators that the Department of Homeland Security has included in their new aviation programs."
